Two Men Ambushed Dreyfus' Attorney.

CASIMIR-PERIER FACES MERCIER.

Some of His Statements In His Testimony Before the Dreyfus Courtmartial to Be Met by Replies From the Former President of France - Dreyfus Would Have Slapped the General Had He Referred to His Alleged Relations With Mme, B .- The Accused Man's Dramatic Demand on the Former Minister of War-Mercler's Statement of the Imminence of War With Germany Ridiculed In Berlin.

Rennes, France, Aug. 14.-Two men ambushed Maitre Labori, counsel for Drevfus, and one shot was fired, hitting Labori in the back. M. Labori fell in the roadway. He is still alive.

Maitre Labori left his house alone for the court at about 6 o'clock this morning. His residence is situated in the suburbs of the town, about a quarter of an hour's walk from the Lycee, the route being along a solitary road beside the river Vilaine. He had reached a point half way on his journey, when two men, who had evidently been lying in wait for him, rushed out of a narrow sane and one of them fired a single shot from a revolver.

The murderers were only a couple of yards behind their victim and the bullet struck Maitre Labori in the back. The wounded man uttered an agonized cry and fell flat on his face. The murderers immediately fled through the dane from which they had emerged and both escaped.

About 7:30 o'clock it was announced that the bullet had entered the stomach; that there was no outward bleeding, and that the physicians believe that M. Labori will die from the wound.

A later story has it that M. Labori was shot in the temple by a man who fired a revolver at him outside the court, and that the miscreant was ar

RENNES, France, Aug. 14.-The Dreyfus courtmartial was resumed today. In view of the confrontation of Mercie by Casimir-Perier, when the former will virtually be in the prisoner's dock, a dramatic scene will likely occur.

It is understood that even a more thrilling incident than that which ended Saturday's session was expected by the counsel of Drevfus and would have occurred but for General Mercier's prudence. Dreyfus intended and had actually declared his determination to slap Mercier's face before the whole court, if he brought up the story of the relations of Dreyfus with Mme. B., who, some newspapers have asserted, acted as go-between for Dreyfus and the attache to whom he is alleged to have made treasonable revelations.

Mercier abstained from all reference to the story, but despite this, the people in the court thought for a moment that Dreytus was about to strike Mercier, until a captain of gendarmes took him gently by the arm and pushed him back into his seat.

Mercier, minister of war when Dreyfus was condemned, had spoken nearly four hours in ruthless denunciation of Dreyfus, who had listened unmoved until Mercier concluded by saying that if he had not been convinced of the gullt of Dreyfus, and if the latter's conviction had not been fortified since 1894. he would admit he had been mistaken. Dreyfus jumped to his feet and shouted "that is what you ought to

The audence burst into a wild cheer, whereupon the ushers called for silence, But when Mercier replied that he would admit Dreyfus was innocent if there was any doubt, the prisoner shouted

"Why don't you then? That is your duty.

At this there was another outburst of applause. M. Casimir-Perier then rose and dramatically demanded to be confronted with General Mercier in order to deny some of his statements.

Colonel Jouaust ordered the court to be adjourned until today at 6:30 a. m. for the confrontation, and as Mercier turned to leave the court the audience rose enmasse and hissed and cursed him, those at the back of the court standing on chairs and benches in order to better hound him down. The gendarmes placed themselves between the general and the audience, who showed a strong disposition to maltreat the former minister of war.

General Mercier hurried out of the courtroom through a side door, amid derce denunciations from the audience. M. Casimir-Perier said that neither he nor the cabinent saw the dossier till a fortnight after the condemnation of Dreyfus.

"For the honor of the magistracy and the honor of France," the ex-president added, "I feel compelled to speak the truth in defense of an innocent

This declaration M. Casimir-Perier attered in a vibrant voice, rising till it broke with emotion. There was an outburst of applause in the courtroom. The president threatened to clear the court if the demonstration was repeated. M. Casimir-Perier proceeded with his testimony, occasionally referring to a paper which he held to refresh his memory as to a date, but speaking without hesitation. He said that one motive for his resignation of the presidency was the ignorance in which he had been kept regarding the Dreyfus affair. He reiterated that he had sworn to the truth. He denied there was danger of attair. He also denied that Captain Lebrun-Renauld had ever communicated to him a confession alleged to have been made by Dreyfus.

Mercier's testimony was mostly a weary, endless defense of himself, an argument of the whole case over again, without one word of proof against Dreyfus. He rehearsed the whole affair from his own point of view, but made one of the two sensational points. The first was when he says Perier had not told the whole story of the diplomatic inci-dent; that he, Mercier, was so certain that Germany was about to declare war that he kept Boisdeffre and hundreds of officers nearly all night at the war of-fice, ready to concentrate the whole French army at strategic points.

Perier wiggled in his seat and waved his hand in objection. The audience received this with murmurs of incredulity. Mercier had it that matters were so urgent and dangerous that he dared not openly publish the documents he held, but sent them privately to the courtmartial for their inspection.

This statement was received with loud, contemptuous murmurs. It was his excuse for furnishing the judges with the secret dossier unknown to the accused. Casimir-Perier had out this ground from under him and his excuse had failed. He rallied, however, with a most sensational statement: "I know that General Jamont has said that 85,000,000 francs were sent from Germany to assist the cause of Dreyfus."

This was unquestionably sensational, but it was like a boulevard canard, so feeble in its form if hearsay gossip instead of business-like evidence that it only produces, "oh! oh! oh!" of contempt and murmurs of derision.

Mercier's discourse was simply a long argument, interrupted by the reading of many letters. He concluded with the impressively stated conviction that Esterhazy could not have written the bordereau; that Dreyfus alone knew the facts; that Dreyfus alone was guilty. Berlin, Aug. 14.—The statements of at Rennes regarding the imminence of chief actors therein. After very close such manner as the convention may direct. war between Germany and France excites only ridicule here. The general opinion is that the former war minister ought now to be judged from a pathological view point.

The semi-official newspapers declare that there was never any idea of war and that, even had Count von Munster, the German ambassador in Paris, been recalled, a charge d'affaires would have been empowered to hurry on the embassy business.

ROOT HAS A FIRM GRASP.

Getting [the War Department In Good Working Order-Municipal Elections Promised Porto Ricons.

Washington, Aug. 14. - Secretary Root is beginning to get a firm grasp on the administration of the war department. He has been at the head of affairs only about 11 days, yet this has been sufficient to show his methods and the influence which his vigorous personality exerts throughout the military establishment.

From Adjucant General Corbin h secured data showing at a glance a broad outline of the army in the field. From the quartermaster general he learned the number of transports, their capacity, readiness to carry troops and the exact status of stores, clothing and equipment, particularly as to General Otis forces in front of the enemy. Of the commissary general he asked just how many reasons were in actual stock at Manila, how long this supply would last, how quickly it could be replenished and whether there was ample margin for every emergency. The same information has been drawn as to ordnance, medical and hospital supplies, engineering and signal equipment. A military map is now being prepared by the adjutant general's office, for the private use of the secretary, showing the advance of our forces from day to day throughout General Otis' campsign, the position and movements on different occasions, the retreat of the enemy and its position and force from time to time.

The secretary has conferred with the commanding general, General Miles, and with General Merritt on the military problems presented, and, besides the military results of these counsels, it has established co-operation between the executive head of the war department and the ranking officers of the army. Concerning Ouba and Porto Rico, the detailed administration of their affairs, with its multitude of minor issues, is being left largely with his assistants and chiefs, and he is concerning himself with the larger questions of the re-construction and future of these isiands, and with the substitution of orderly civil government for the military regime now in force. When for-mer Premier Rivera urged that an order be speedily issued for municipal elections in Porto Rico, the secretary replied that he hoped these elections would occur as soon as the present unhappy and stormswept condition of the island would permit. When it was suggested that the desolation in Porto Rico made it opportune a remission of duties on articles of prime necessity, the secretary said he was already conferring with General Davis, governor general of the island, as to that sten.

The persons implicated belong to the group of Royalist Youth and the Patriotic and Anti-Semitic Leagues. At the trial of the Neuilly barrack affair facts relating to that incident alone were used as the basis of the prosecution; but searches were then made and then documents were seized which led to the discovery of an organization, dating back to July, 1898, and of a plot to seize the government by force. The documents leave no room for doubt, either in regard to watch, organized proof was obtained that the same groups were preparing for a fresh attempt at an early date, the proof being such as to enable the disturbances to be averted by immediate measures. ACROBATIC EQUINES.

They Amuse the People of South Cherry Street by Turning Somersaults.

A peculiar accident was witnessed about 7 o'clock Monday morning in South Cherry street, near Hane street. A team of horses owned by a peddler which were being harnessed preparatory to attaching to a wagon were standing in an alley near Shriver's run when in some manner they were frightened and started running east along the alley. At Cherry street one of the animals, encumbered with the harness slipped and turned a somersault, head over heels, upon the street, dragging the other animal almost to the ground. The fallen horse regained his feet and together the team dashed down Cherry street. They were shortly afterward caught by the owner. The horses escaped without injury.

The little fellow was playing about the cistern and was not looking where he was running and he dropped like a shot into the water. Charley Bolinsky, who was nearby when the accident occurred, ran to the boy's assist-ance and hauled him from his dangerous predicament.
